Dayle Olson is a poet and short fiction writer living in Cathlamet, WA. Her pocket zines feature poetry and drawings inspired by life on the Lower Columbia. Her work appears in The Salal Review, RAIN Magazine, Litmora Literary Magazine, Thin Veil Press, And Other Poems, Timber Ghost Press, and North Coast Squid, among others. She is a frequent book review contributor to the Columbia River Reader. Dayle's writing community includes WordFest of Longview, The Writer's Guild of Astoria, and Willamette Writers, Portland. Along with hosting a quarterly poetry open mic at River Mile 38 brew pub in Cathlamet, she enjoys teaching poetry zine workshops, and popping into Mark Morris High School and Wahkiakum High School to talk about poetry. Dayle has compiled her first chapbook collection of poetry, which is currently on submission.
